Suffolk University Madrid Campus is located in a privileged area of the city, in a safe neighborhood within the university district, with nearby buses and subway stops allowing easy access to all of Madrid’s cultural resources.

The city boasts over 50 museums, including The Prado Museum, The Thyssen-Bornemisza and the Reina Sofia National Art Centre (Madrid’s “Golden Triangle”) and other permanent and temporary exhibits, which make the Spanish capital one of Europe’s most important cultural centers. Additional cultural resources provide experiential learning opportunities for other arts and humanities majors. A perfect example is the one-week intensive Flamenco course at one of the capital’s most renowned “tablao,” under the instruction of professional dancers.

Madrid also serves as the commercial hub of Spain, presenting exciting study opportunities for European economics and business. Since Spain joined the European Union in 1986, Madrid has experienced impressive economic growth and now serves as headquarters for some of the most important European multinational corporations. Course-related activities in Madrid, specifically organized for business majors, include visits to international companies such as Microsoft, Knight Frank and British Telecom, as well as to Spanish corporations such as Telefónica.

Communications majors will also find the city of Madrid an exciting destination where visits to radio and television stations will add a European perspective to their studies. The city also provides the perfect setting for a photography course.
Students attending your faculty-led program in Madrid can take courses with those faculty members of your institution coming to Madrid and/or courses taught at Suffolk University Madrid Campus, as well as those taught at our Spanish neighbor institution, Universidad CEU San Pablo. The courses listed below are open to all faculty-led programs. Please request additional information on specific courses and dates offered.

1. Courses taught in English at both Suffolk University Madrid Campus and Universidad CEU San Pablo, in more than 12 departments
2. Spanish language and culture courses taught in Spanish at Suffolk University Madrid Campus, from elementary to upper division levels
3. Courses taught in Spanish at Universidad CEU San Pablo in 8 different disciplines
4. Internships

Universidad CEU San Pablo

Universidad CEU San Pablo is a prestigious private Spanish university with a campus in the Moncloa district of the Spanish capital. The facilities of this institution are adjacent to the Suffolk University Madrid Campus.

Universidad CEU San Pablo and Suffolk University signed a cooperation agreement in the year 2000 by which Suffolk Madrid Campus students can participate in all academic and extra-academic activities of the Spanish institution. This includes taking courses in a Spanish university setting, using Universidad CEU San Pablo libraries and other facilities, participating in cultural activities and sports, completing internships and joining volunteer groups. Enrollment at Universidad CEU San Pablo Moncloa campus is currently 5,000 Spanish students.
The Madrid Campus occupies a building in the Metropolitano area of the city between the residential/commercial areas of Cuatro Caminos and Moncloa. It is surrounded by private mansions, convents and Universidad CEU San Pablo buildings. Students have access to classrooms, three computer labs, the science lab, library, multi-media room and student lounge. The Suffolk University building also houses the campus main administration and student accounts offices, as well as those of faculty and guest programs.

The Universidad CEU San Pablo campus surrounds the Suffolk University building. Some facilities and services of CEU San Pablo are open to students attending faculty-led programs at Suffolk University Madrid Campus. For additional information on these facilities and services please contact us at:

Madrid’s location in the geographic center of Spain makes it the country’s primary transportation hub. This location provides opportunities for affordable weekend trips throughout Spain and to other European cities.

The theme and nature of your course will determine the locations you choose for travel outside Madrid. Some examples of courses for which travel would be one of the main components are:

- History of the Judeo-Christian and Muslim Religions
- Spain’s Golden Age
- Spanish Academia
- Presence and Influence of the Roman Empire
- Wine industries in the Rioja, Ribera del Duero and Somontano Regions
- Tourism in Southern Europe
- Agricultural Methods in Southern Europe
- Clothing Manufacturing and Inventory Control
- Fishing Industries in Europe
- Sustainable Development
- European Union Development and Integration

A short distance away from Madrid are a number of culturally and historically rich cities, such as:

- Toledo
- Avila
- Aranjuez
- Cuenca
- Salamanca
- Segovia

Other travel opportunities, requiring an overnight stay, could be considered for destinations within the regions of:

- Andalucía
- Asturias
- Caceres
- Cantabria
- Cataluña
- Alicante
- Murcia
- Aragon
- Castilla León
- Valencia
- Castilla La Mancha
BEYOND MADRID.....

TRAVELLING THE EUROPEAN UNION
Additional course-related travel can be arranged for you to take advantage of your faculty-led program in Europe. Madrid’s Barajas Airport has daily flights departing to cities all over the European Union. Trips to other European countries will normally be scheduled at the end of the course and will require a minimum stay of five days.

HEALTH AND SAFETY IN MADRID

The health and safety of your program participants is our main concern. Suffolk University in Madrid has systems and procedures that will ensure efficient handling of emergency situations as well as medical attention for the duration of your course in Spain. All students attending Suffolk University Madrid are required to purchase insurance with the leading private medical corporation in Spain, SANITAS. Non-medical emergency procedures in Madrid are designed following advice of the US Embassy in Spain. All students attending a faculty-led program are required to have a cellular phone for the duration of the course. This service can be arranged prior to departure from the US. The Madrid Campus uses SMS Manager to provide instructions to all program participants in the event of an emergency.
